

NORTH CAROLINA A. & E. DOING MAGNIFICENT WORK

More Than 20 Per Cent of Enrollment Since Establishment in Nation's Service.

PRACTICAL TYPE OF EDUCATION

Mission of Great Institution Has Been to Train Its Students to Do Well the Everyday Necessary Occupations in Life.

By W. C. RIDDICK, President.

The people of North Carolina during times of peace have never been specially interested in the arts of war, and when, about two or three years ago, they organized their State College of Agriculture and Engineering under the Morrill act of 1862 and the supplemental Morrill act of 1890, it was organized on a military basis. Only so much instruction in military science and tactics were given as the law required.

The Morrill act provided for a college whose leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies, and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts, in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the various pursuits and professions of life.

HAS BECOME SECOND

PLACE IN WORLD'S WORK

From a very small beginning this college has in twenty-eight years become the second largest educational institution in the State, with sixty-five teachers, twenty-seven buildings, a well-equipped farm of about 400 acres, a large herd of dairy cattle and an up-to-date dairy, fully-equipped shops, laboratories and drafting rooms, and such scientific instruments as are needed to give its students technical education in agriculture, engineering, textile industry and chemistry.

Although the leading purpose of the college is to give technical and practical instruction yet, subjects are not omitted. Thorough instruction is given in English, mathematics, political economy, physics, chemistry, botany, zoology, geology, geology and modern languages.

GRADUATES TAKE HIGH

PLACE IN WORLD'S WORK

During the life of the college it has turned out from its agricultural department graduates who are editing well-known agricultural papers, or teaching in the agricultural colleges and schools of this and other States. Quite a number of its graduates are employed in the experiment station and extension work of the United States Department of Agriculture, and better than all, the college is struggling throughout the State to give its graduates a place in the world's work.

The teaching which the college does in its classrooms is only one important part of the instruction which it gives. The State agricultural experiment station is one of its activities, agricultural extension is another, and it is designed to bring its teaching to the homes of the farmers. Agricultural demonstrators are carrying better methods to the farmers and showing them how to apply them.

As said in the beginning of this article, this college was not planned with any special reference to military instruction. In fact, the trustees, along with the other people of the State, had begun to realize the necessity of military training for our young men when the national defense act was passed, which proceeded at once to establish a unit of the reserve officers' training corps at this institution, which, of course, meant a considerable increase in the amount of military instruction given to our students.

TYPE OF EDUCATION GIVEN

EXCLUSIVELY MILITARY

When our Government entered the world war and began to organize its armies, it became apparent at once how important the type of education given at the various branches of military service, and the War Department gave every recognition to the college's military matters. The members of our senior classes and our alumni have been freely admitted and urged to enter the various officers' training corps, a privilege accorded to no other institution in the State. That they have been national in their response is shown by the number of our students in military service, which is about as follows: commissioned officers, 200; noncommissioned officers, 125; privates, 100. The total number of our students in military service is 425, which is 20 per cent of the total enrollment of the college. The above figures represent only the men who were detailed to the various branches of military service, located up to June 1, and our facilities for doing this have been rather meager. There is hardly a doubt that more than 1,000 of our former students are now in service, and that by July 1 this number will have been increased considerably.

INTRODUCED SPECIAL

WAR WORK COURSE

By request of the War Department, the college has introduced special courses for training men to do special work in winning the war, and the value of our instruction has been recognized by granting temporary exemption to many of our students in order that they may complete their training here. Our entire senior class in electrical engineering elected on the 1st of January to change from their regular course to the course prescribed by the chief signal officer of the United States Army. They completed this course by June 1, and every member of the class volunteered for military service in the signal corps. Out of our graduating class, numbering forty-nine, thirty-nine entered military service immediately upon their graduation, and a large majority of those who did not enter were either too young or else physically disqualified.

WILLIAM AND MARY COLLEGE

BECOMES CO-EDUCATIONAL

Venerable Institution Prepares to Instruct Students of Both Sexes, Beginning Next Session.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WILLIAMSBURG, VA., June 22.—The session of 1917-18 at the College of William and Mary was brought to a close on Tuesday, June 11. The commencement program began on Sunday, June 9, at 11 A. M. with an eloquent sermon by Dr. H. B. Battle, pastor of High Street Baptist Church, Charlottesville. Dr. Battle's text was "Render unto Caesar the Things That Are Caesar's and unto God the Things That Are God's." The theme was patriotism, the treatment eloquent and inspiring.

Monday at 11 A. M. the Phoenix and Philomathean Literary Societies held a joint contest in declamation, oratory and debate for a silver cup offered by the faculty of the college. The judges awarded the prize to the Phoenix Society.

Monday afternoon the senior class and the younger members of the faculty amused the crowd by playing a baseball game, which was won by the seniors, 6 to 2.

Monday evening was given to a prominent young lawyer, alumnus, F. S. McCandlish of Fairfax, Va. After this address the alumni and their guests enjoyed a delightful reception in the beautiful college library.

Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock the senior class of 1918, in an attractive miniature pageant, enacted the court of King William and Queen Mary visiting the college. Present at the college, presented a memorial of their class a beautiful speaker's stand for the chapel rostrum. Dr. J. S. Wilson, representing President Blair, made a fitting and thoughtful address into which he wrought a poem of unusual merit. The class of 1918 also presented the class a memorial of their class a beautiful speaker's stand for the chapel rostrum. Dr. J. S.
